

AMY BOUCICault IS FREE, MORE POLICE FOR FRANCE.

Judge McAdam To-Day Grants
Her an Absolute Divorce.

Miss Victory Bateman Exonerated
on the Records.

Mrs. Amy Boucicault, better known to the public by her stage name, Amy Betsy, was granted a decree of absolute divorce from her husband, Aubrey Boucicault, today, by Judge McAdam, of the Superior Court.

Miss Boucicault nor her husband were present in court this morning when the case came up for hearing. Mrs. Boucicault is a member of the W. H. Crane's stock company, and Mr. H. J. Aldrich, Boucicault, is absent from the United States, with Richard Mansfield's company.

The couple were married in Chicago.

Miss Boucicault began her action for divorce last September. The publication of her charges against her husband created a sensation throughout the country.

One of her allegations was one charging that Boucicault had been criminally intimate with Miss Victory Bateman at that time a member of the Caghans' company, of which Boucicault was also a member.

Miss Bateman indignantly denied the charges against her as soon as they were made public, as did also Boucicault.

Despite her denial, a short time after the publication of the charges, the attorney for the defense was asked to resign from the Professional Woman's League.

Shortly after this occurrence John T. Stoddard, manager of the Caghans' company, requested Aubrey Boucicault to resign from the company. He gave as his reason a fear that the presence of both Miss Bateman and Miss Boucicault in the same company might cause scandal in view of the charges that had been made.

Mrs. Boucicault expected to be absent from the city when the case came to trial, she was allowed to give her testimony on Sept. 3 last before leaving the city with her company.

At that time she knew that she knew nothing of her own knowledge as to the charges against Miss Bateman, and had been compelled to set her suit upon defense and belief.

Mrs. Boucicault was represented this morning by Attorney Robert Griffin, of Mr. Robert O'Neill's office.

Hannum appeared for Boucicault, and also represented Miss Bateman.

No witnesses were put on the stand. An affidavit from the Henley, the attorney, was offered in evidence.

Henley swore that several times during the Fall of 1892 he had visited a disorderly house in San Francisco in company with Boucicault.

No denial of Henley's affidavit was made by Boucicault.

After testing the Henley affidavit, Judge McAdam said he would grant Mrs. Boucicault a decree on that date.

Counsel for the defense, Mr. Hannum, then called the Henley affidavit.

Judge McAdam granted the request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Boucicault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry again if she wishes.

An attorney for the reporter asked Mr. Hannum after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hannum's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

SHOT AT DEAD MEN'S SKULLS.

Sharp Watch on Anarchists All Through the Republic.

Carl Stubb Arrested—A Revolutionary Shoemaker Banished.

(By Associated Press.)

EDINBURGH, Dec. 14.—The trial of Alfred J. Monson, accused of the murder of Lieut. Hambrough, in August last, was continued this morning.

The usher of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination, admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination, admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon cross-examination,

admitted that he believed that the witness of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the jurymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams.

McNaughton, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed